SOUTHEAST REGION: LA ROMANA

The Southeast Coast of Dominican Republic lays claim to a combination of picturesque beaches, chic accommodations and a variety of exciting attractions in addition to its famous golf courses. Within this luxurious region, golfers can play at some of the world's best courses designed by the Dye family dynasty. Four courses are located at Casa de Campo Resort while the newest course in the area, La Estancia, includes gorgeous fairways and surprising challenges. Once a sugar-producing region, La Romana area still charms with azure Caribbean seas, exotic islands, the Chavón River valley and palm-tree covered National Parks that provide scenic backgrounds from the area's five courses.

World Golf Hall of Fame course architect Pete Dye scored the hat trick with Dye Fore, his third masterpiece at the luxurious Casa de Campo Resort in La Romana. Built in 2005, the beauty of the land surrounding the course will take your breath away with Dominican Republicamatic Chavon River valley – where scenes from Apocalypse Now were filmed as a backdrop to the unique Dye Fore. The course boasts seven cliff-side holes dropping 300 feet to the Chavón River below, the replica Mediterranean village of Altos de Chavón, the Dominican mountains (the Caribbean's highest), 40-mph gusting winds and amazing 360-degree views.

CASA DE CAMPO RESORT THE LINKS

Location: La Romana

Holes: 18; Par: 72; Yardage: 6,650/4,800

Designer: Pete Dye

Contact: www.casadecampogolf.com ; (809) 523-8115

The second Dye course at Casa de Campo opened in 1975 and has drawn comparisons to traditional British and Scottish links courses thanks to firm fairways and open putting surfaces that invite golfers to play shots along the ground. At first glance, The Links might not seem nearly as intimidating as its two seaside sister courses. However, looks can be deceiving. The moderately hilly course features several lagoons and lakes that are popular with wading birds. Tall, dense bahia and guinea jungle-grass rough and numerous bunkers complete the scene. Most of The Links' holes dogleg either right or left over the undulating landscape, and there are five holes on which water provides an exceptional challenge to even the lowest handicappers. Dye also did a fabulous job with the greenside bunkering at The Links, even including a few of his trademark pot bunkers to bedevil golfers.

Teeth of the Dog

CASA DE CAMPO RESORT TEETH OF THE DOG

Location: La Romana

Holes: 18; Par: 72; Yardage: 6,888/6,057/5,571/5,041

Designer: Pete Dye

Contact: www.casadecampogolf.com ; (809) 523-8115

Dye's first Casa de Campo creation in 1971, was the course that initially put Dominican Republic on the world's golf stage. Nearly 40 years later, Teeth of the Dog consistently ranks among the world's best courses by Golfweek and Golf Digest magazines, ranking the course among the top in the Caribbean and Latin America. There are seven ocean-front holes—four on the front nine and three on the back—that play extra tough thanks to the capricious trade winds. While the course has stood the test of time, Dye sharpened its teeth by lengthening some holes, and upgrading greens and bunkers, for a November 2005 re-opening.

The club also features a large pool and a gourmet restaurant with a view of the 18th hole. This course was expanded in 2009 with nine additional holes including the 8th, with a view of the sea from its new gazebo.

This imposing and challenging P.B. Dye-designed course takes full advantage of its breathtaking site on a cliff's-edge 400 feet above the winding Chavón River and the beautiful ravine of Tanama. Located on Dominican Republic's Southeast Coast in the La Estancia Golf Resort residential community, La Estancia Golf Course opened in 2007. It may seem tame on first glance but watch out for the increasing challenge as you play. La Estancia's views, particularly on the front nine, are nothing less than spectacular. The course also features grass hollows around its greens instead of bunkers. There also are wide fairways to corral errant drives since the course hugs the ledges of the vast, spectacular landscape. Dye moved vast amounts of earth to create La Estancia, which tests the short game with hard-to-hold greens, several with steep drop-offs.

Player included some unique features into his Guavaberry design, such as a 15-foot waterfall cascading into a quarry pond (on the par-3 13th signature hole, where two separate greens are rotated daily to give golfers different perspectives), and indigenous coral rock formations on holes 9 and 18. All of Guavaberry's putting surfaces have ample surrounding areas for recovery shots. With vegetation encroaching toward many of the fairways, accuracy is paramount. Along with the tropical flora you'll encounter waste bunkers, deep bunkers, blue skies and constant Caribbean breezes, and the 15th green is surrounded by a three-acre pond that awaits less-than-perfect approaches.
